

First Light

Have you ever wondered what David felt as he wrote a psalm? So many thoughts, emotions, and experiences and he used all of these to express his relationship with God. Could you do the same thing? Could you sit down and pen your deepest heartfelt feelings about a perfect God who knows you inside and out and what you're thinking before you do? Read the poem by Art Hyde and enjoy the praise offered to a holy Creator while reflecting on your own personal relationship with this same God!

My God

*I yearn for you my God,
your love, your grace, and compassion.*

*I long for you my Lord,
for you fill my heart with joy and peace like no other.*

Your strength and deep affection are but two of that which gives me reason to shout, my King, my King - forever!

*Your love inspires and opens my eyes,
giving rise to all that I can be, and more.*

*Jehovah-jireh, you stand above the earth and heavens,
and make way for all to find safety while held in your loving arms.*

*Hallowed be your name oh God,
the father of all you have created,
known and unknown to man.*

*Abba, you sent your son to open the doors of Heaven,
for those who love and accept your love and gift eternal.*

*Wonderful, you know my name, my thoughts and heart of repentance.
I long to worship at your feet and sing your praises evermore.*

*Halleluiah, halleluiah father of Abraham,
may my life shine brightly because of your wisdom and glory,
your love that fills all space and time.*

Halleluiah oh Elohim, your creative hands are supreme in all they touch and design.

*Your will celebrates me as your masterpiece,
how much greater shall I aspire.*

*I yearn for you my God,
my Father, my Christ, surround me with your Holy Spirit,
and guide me through the provocations of life,
so, I can be yours and serve you for all of time. Amen*
